Staff Apparel

The constant threat of a pandemic outbreak emphasizes for the medical community just how important protection is for health care employees. Appropriate apparel is the health care worker's first line of defence against infectious agents.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration advises that personal protective equipment must not permit blood or other potentially infectious materials to pass through to or reach the employee's work clothes, street clothes, undergarments, skin, eyes, mouth, or other mucous membranes.

Hand Care

Influenza is a common respiratory illness affecting millions of Canadians each year. In Canada, flu season usually runs from November to April.

The most effective way to protect yourself from the flu is to be vaccinated each year in the fall. Regular hand washing is another way to help minimize your risk. By washing your hands often, you reduce the chances of you or your residents becoming infected.
